

“In the seventh plague, a very strong wind brought in great swarms of locusts. They ate all the greenery, plants and fruits from the trees.”